Looking for new Mac desktop imagery? Downlink is a nifty menu bar app that aims to provide you with instant access to a collection of wallpapers for macOS, created using live feeds from a trio of satellites to provide the “freshest images of Earth” possible.. So far, developer Anthony Colangelo has been unable to find any open and available data sources for Europe or Africa that meet the necessary image quality requirements and refresh frequency.. A picture doesn’t always come out crystal clear Even just the slightest bit of movement from the camera can create a blur effect that draws away from what should have been a crisp image.. Downlink generates its satellite imagery from GOES-16, GOES-17, and Himawari-8 The first two are satellites operated by NASA and NOAA, while the Himawari-8 is a Japanese weather satellite.
