

Divan-e Shams-e Tabrizi In Urdu Pdf Download

بمیرید، بمیرید، در این عشق بمیرید
در این عشق چو مردید، همه روح پذیرید
بمیرید، بمیرید، وز این مرگ نترسید
کز این خاک بر آید، سماوات بگیریید
بمیرید، بمیرید، وزین نفس بیریید
که این نفس چو بند است و شما همچو آسیریید
یکی تیشه بگیریید بی حفره زندان
چو زندان بشکستید همه شاه و امیریید
بمیرید، بمیرید، به پیش شو زیبا
بر شاه چو مردید، همه شاه و شهیریید
بمیرید، بمیرید، وزین ایر بر آئید
چو زین ایر بر آئید، همه بدر منبریید
خمشید، خمشید، خموشی دم مرگ است
هم از زندگی است این که زخاموش نقیریید

Rumi (Rumi Rujhānī), 1207–1273. Translator/biographer: Coleman Barks. Book size: 37 cm. Titled the "Quranic Lady" by Muslims, the poetess was the wife of the great poet Hafez, the poet laureate of Persia, with whom she spent a year and a half of her life. The majority of the lines of her verse are in a very tranquil and dark and pleasant style. Her language is graceful, polished and devoid of any harshness or rudeness, which is apparent in the verses of Hafez. It is said that it is the sweetness and softness of her song that endeared her to her husband and which led to the canonization of his poetry, of which she became the defender and advocate. Adab al-nuzūl. Allāhumma inna fee rahmatan wa barakatan, wa anhasanatan wa insanatan. Ta'aliyn 'a'alayya wajdihin wa qadariya wajhidin. Alhamdolillah wa bihamdolillah wa rahmatan wa barakatan wa ashanatan. Translation: O Allah, give us your mercy and blessings, keep us on the right path and protect us against the evil eye.
